

A METHOD OF BURSTY DATA TRANSMISSION

ABSTRACT

A method of communicating at least one data burst using an assigned 5 radio configuration. The assigned radio configuration is chosen from one of at least two radio configurations by examining which radio configuration supports a higher data transmission rate. This examination is determined by calculating the data transmission rate for the data burst(s) base on a power level and Walsh code for each of the radio configurations.